

A Phishing Attack Could Affect Your Account

Chaco Credit Union values the safety and security of our members, their accounts and identities. One way we help to maintain your security is to inform you about email scams and phishing attacks, which can result in your account being compromised.

Phishing is a type of email scam that hackers use to get members to disclose their account numbers, login IDs, passwords, and other privileged information. They send mass emails to a large number of people hoping to lure those who are actual members of that bank to click a link to a fraudulent website that looks like Chaco Credit Union's and enter their account and/or personal information.

CHACO CREDIT UNION WILL NEVER SOLICIT THIS INFORMATION VIA EMAIL.

The best way that you can protect yourself against this type of scam is never to provide the following information via an unsolicited email, a link in an email or a website that you have not intentionally accessed:

- User IDs
- Passwords
- Social Security Number
- Card or Account Numbers
- Credit Card Security Code (CCV)
